A BOY'S ADVICE TO OLD MEN.

I cannot pick up a newspaper with out 'Advice of Boys' stares me in the face. Old men write it, I s'pose. Nobody is capable of giving advice to boys; of course not! They know all about us, they do because they have been there. Advice is a good thing to have no doubt, and no family shoul ! be without it, but a fellow don't want to be crammed with it all the time ti the exclusion of all other diet.

Now, old men need advice occasion ally but in looking through the newspapers I dont see that they get it. So just thought I would write a little ading to have precisely what you want vice to old men myself, if I am not

In the first place you old chaps ought to get over telling how much smarter hovs were when you were boys than are now. You believe it yourself, of course, 'cause you've told it so many imes, but we boys are boys, pretty much-except some are girls-the, world over, and one generation of them don't lie over another generation o any alarming extent.

ANECDOTE OF SCOTT. It is a curious fact that Scott, har monious poet as he was, had no ear for music, unless in were that of a ballad, and he would repeat that horribly out of tune. He was, however, in tune with all humanity; as much so with a king as with the humblest of his subjects. When we went on board the royal yacht which had arrived near Leith, with George IV., amid such rain as falls only in Scotland, Scott, in an off hand, yet respectful way, told the king that the weather reminded him of the stormy day of his own ar rival in the Western Highlands, weather which so disgusted the landlord of the inn, who was used to the very worst, that he applogized for it. 'Guide, guide us! this is just awful! Siccean a downpour, was ever the like. I really beg your pardon! I'm sure its nae fant o' mine. I canna think how if should happen to rain this way just as you of a' men i' the warld should come to see us! It looks amaist personal! I can only say, for my part, I'm just ashamed o' the weather!' Having thus spoken to the king Scott added: 'I so not know, sire, that I can improve upon tac language of the honest innkeeper, I canna think how it should rain in this way, just as your majesty, of all men in the world grould have condeseemded to come and see us. It is a miniature giant, doing more work and of a better quality, than the most elaborate and costly. One half of the labor is fully saved by its use, and the clothes will last one half longer than by the old plan of the rub board. It will wash the largest blanket. Three shirts at a time, washing thoroughly! In a word, the ablution of any fabric, from a quilt to a lace curtain or cambrie handkerchief, are equally within the capacity of the Little Gem! It can be fastened to any tub and taken off at will.

No matter how deep rooted a prejudice may exist against Washing Machines, the moment this little machine is seen to perform its wonders, all doubts of its cleansing efficacy and utility are banished, and the doubter and detractor at once become fast friends of the machine.

We have testimonials without end, setting forth its numerous adventages over all others, and from hundreds who have thrown aside the unwieldy, useless machines, which have signally failed to accomplish the object promised in prominent and loud sounding d ceatisements.

It is as perfect for washing as a wringer is for wringing.
